A few things to consider when creating ceremony

Do you want to use “god”, “goddess”, “great spirit”, “divine spirit”, “universe”, “community” or another word? (note, both people do not need to use the same word; each should use the word most comfortable for them)

For those of a pagan persuasion, any such element can be explained as an “Old Irish/Swedish/Native American/German” tradition to keep religious guests and family comfortable.

Is anyone “presenting” the bride? (Fathers can “allow themselves to let go/acknowledge a change in relationship” rather than “give away”)

Unity Candle

Mixing of Sand (good for blending families)

drinking from a chalice

crossing threshold, broom or bonfire.

Vows taken by family and friends to support couple

Readings by others

Binding with cord (handfasting – yeah, just like in Braveheart)

Specific poems or prayers

incorporating and blending specific cultures, traditions, religions standard non-denominational ceremony traditional ceremony with traditional or non traditional language.

Music – recorded or live?
